

Nsikan O. Udo is a graduate student at the Moscow Institute of Physics and Technology (MIPT) and a research intern at the Institute of Biomedical Chemistry (IBMC), Russia. His work focuses on leveraging deep learning and graph neural network architectures for adverse drug reaction prediction, integrating molecular structure and biomedical text representations. His research interests span bioinformatics, cheminformatics, and AI-driven approaches to drug safety assessment.

